- OCTOBER 27, 1856.

Meet the Democracy at Gilman's

Fellow-Americane, it is for us to say active these things are to be telerated.

Louisville Journal. This is the conclusion, after relating two c three instances of alleged entrageous conduct of Irishmen. The whole amount is, that these men harrahed for Bushanar, but did no harm. They only looked like they would. Such an occurronce is paraded to exasperate men to violence "It is for us to say"-and how is " us" to say so much? Arm, of course, with brass knuckles and clubs, to dr.ve logal voters from the polls, or to kneek down, best, and abuse every Irishman that comes along; especially if he hurrals for Buchanan. We could fill our columns with instances of the insolence of Know-Nothings, with their threats of lawlessness. There are always lawless men enough, especially where whisky is pleaty, to annoy peaceable folks with their vulgarity and rumanism. The editor professed a desire, the other day, for peaco, just as he did prior to the election of Au n t. 1855; but then, as now, he published every item he could muster to exasperate to violenco. The paragraph we have quoted is an invocation to violence; it can mean nothing else. The public so understand it; his readers so understand it; and he himself so understands it. No city authorities can keep peace, whilst such in 12mmstery appeals are made; and it is not worth while for the efitor to pretend that he desires peace, when he publishes such invocations. If he iutends to play this game, upon his guilty head will rest every drop of blood shed. We noticed his inflammatory and incendiary paragraphs before the election of August, 1855. The whole Hope Nearly Gone-More Money Wanted. country has read them. We now call public at tention to a beginning of the same thing. The ILLARD FILLMORE AND ANDREW JACKSON DONELSON State Executive Committee of the American Party for the First, S cond, Fifth, and Seventh Congressional Districts. amount of the suggestion is this, supposing all occurred as it is stated; inasmuch as several Irishmen behaved outrageously in two or three in stances, we A. cricans must say, we Know-Nothings must say if this is to be telerated; and what are " we" to do? Ask the brass knuckle fraternity of this city, or leave the suggestion to them They will teach Irishmen how to behave-drive there from the polis, beat them, burn their houses ani kill them, m n and women, indiscriminately that is the auggestion in all its length and breidt'i Fiche publ'e understand it; and none voked to frown upon such cutrages, the legal ast you to join in the remeded color, and tartyou will while under the influence of excitement and precar mi-unders.and i'. Good mitzons are not in to ray! And has it come to this, that we have no law here but party law; and no way to rectif an raise, in our judgment-ille to throw away wrong but by civil war and bloodshed? It would seem so from the mob organ, and no one can misnwisely when he barned up ten conts worth of take it. If the whole party press should call upon andles to find it Keep your cash. You have party power for vengeance for the indignitie dready all the purchasable vote. offered by blackguards, what would this State come to? The day of the election would be a day complained of.

We now invoke every good citizen who does not wish to see Louisville outlawed, and crushed out, in the estimation of this State, to frown upon all such incendiary suggestions. Other cities can have peace; other cities are not infested by these inflammatory appeals about the insolence of foreiguers, based upon the conduct of a few drunken rowdies; but here in Louisville we are to have daily invocations of party vengeance, bleedy monitions of what is meditated; preparing the way for what is intended, in spite of pretences of paragraph we have quoted is unmistakable.

Carpet Bags and Gulls.

A few days ago a citizen of Boyle county, on well as over two hundred pounds avoirdnpois in his own person. Hastening and sweating on his weary way, he little dreamed what awaited him.

Some of the vigilant Know-Nothings of Bryants-ville had read the Journal, and saw the black carpet bag; so they followed and arrested him.

He tried to explain-told where he lived, who he had bought his place of, and who he was akin to;

but the vigilants were not to be fooled. They know all about that region, and there was no such man there. He protested that he was as good an American as they were, and about the first of the faithful; but the committee damned his Americanism, and were for hurrying him out of the State; but they happened to meet the Sheriff, who knew the citizen, and spoiled one dish of sport to make a richer one.

Col. Preston. of civil war. The deeds done in this city have Many of our friends in this State have been already awakened a spirit in this State that will enxious to see and hear Col. Prestor; but cannot not be easily controlled, if mob law is allowed in e gratifel. Tae Col. spont some time in Penn this city again. Notice is now distinctly given, sylvani , by the advice of his friends, and we have and what may happen is fully understood. If diffisould not have been bester spent. He reached culty happens, it is one of their own seeking, and home but a few days ago, and would have visited of their own make; and with this fully in view. here is a paragraph in the chief organ, appealing to party vengeance against the same people who were its victims in 1855. Let every reader mark the organ; it professes a desire for peace; it die so previous to the elections of 1855. It invokes toe gallant and eloquent Preston has been doing afterward party vengeance upon foreigners for his whole duty where, in the judgment of his alloged insolence; it pursued the same course in riends, his services were most needed. 1855. Gov. A. P. Willard.

This distinguished and elequent champion of the Constitution will address the poorle of Kentucky on the 25th inst., at Gilman's barbcous; 29th at Newcastle; 30th at Bardstown; 31st at Shelbyville. He is one of the ablest stump orators in the Union, and should meet with a reception worthy of his high position.
